

OMG! THANK YOU. YOU ARE gorgeous!

Thank you so much for purchasing “Modern Society” font. It means the world to me that my design has been able to inspire you and contribute to your own entrepreneurial adventures. I cannot wait to see what amazing things you create with it!

Because of customers like you, independent women like me are able to follow their dreams without compromising on my family and children. Every font you choose to purchase makes a huge impact as this is my primary source of providing financial support to my family members.

I want to take a moment to thank every one of my customers for the accomplishment of my career line. It contributes to my exciting and interesting journey of motherhood, since it allows me to spend more time with my children.

In return, I wholeheartedly want to ensure your total satisfaction with my product. If you run into any difficulty during installing the font or have any question for me, please don't hesitate to send a message right away!

windows

You can access alternate glyphs and swashes for Windows a pre-installed program named Character Map. When using Character Map, check 'advanced view', select 'Unicode Subrange' and select 'Private Use Characters' Now select and copy the glyph of your choice and paste it in your editor or program. And don't forget to select the right font otherwise you will only see rectangles.

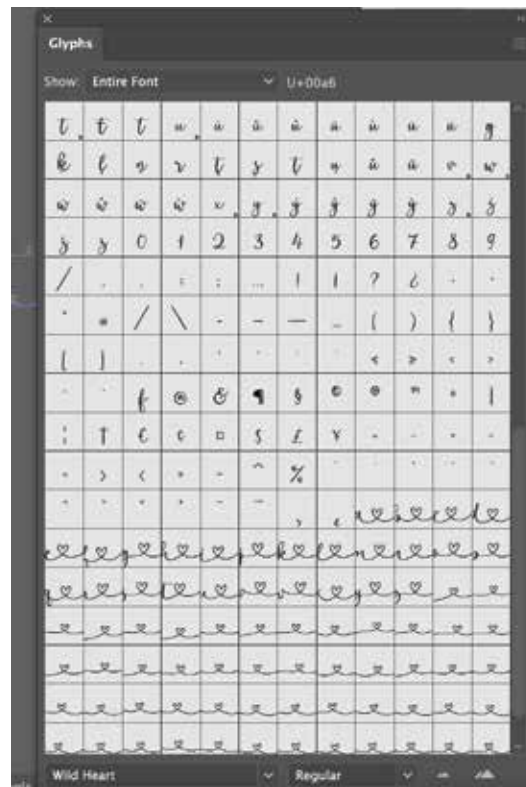

To access alternate glyphs and swashes on a Mac you can use Font Book. When using Font Book be sure to switch to 'repertoire view', it's the little icon at the top left with the grid/dots. Simply select and copy the glyph of your choice and paste it in your editor or program. And don't forget to select the right font otherwise you will only see rectangles.

illustrator

Later versions of Illustrator has option- automatically offering alternative glyphs. Also, you can find Glyphs from Window > Type > Glyphs.

Microsoft Word 2010 or later versions have a glyph panel where you can access the swashes.

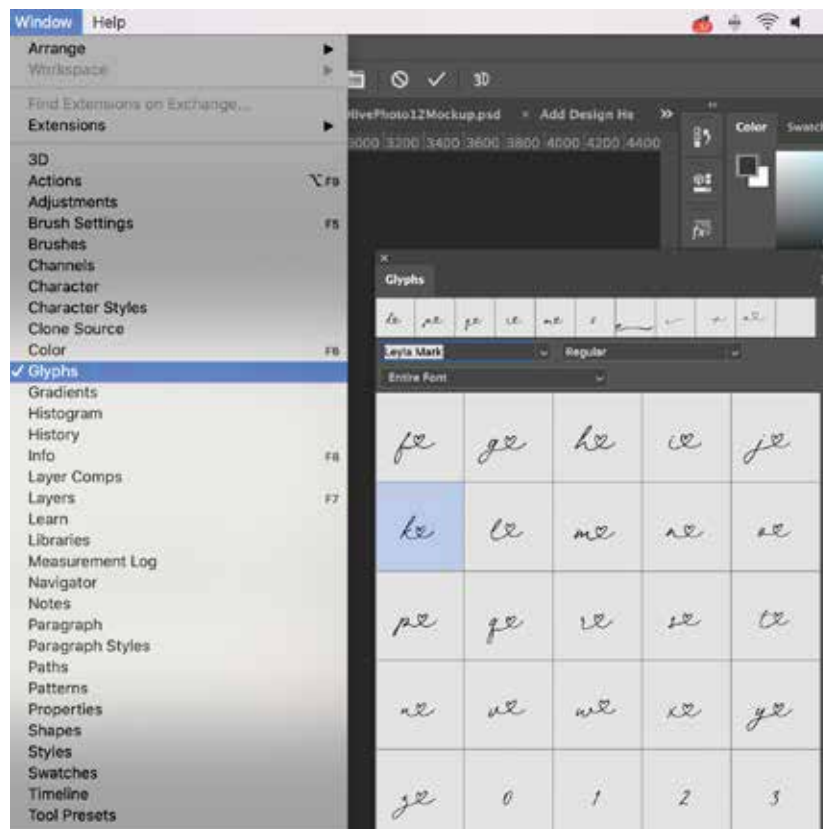

First, select the correct font and go to Insert > Symbols > More symbols

ms word

photoshop

Photoshop CC and higher have a glyph panel where you can find the swashes & alternates. Select Balzak and go to Window > Glyphs > and double-click on the glyph you want to use.

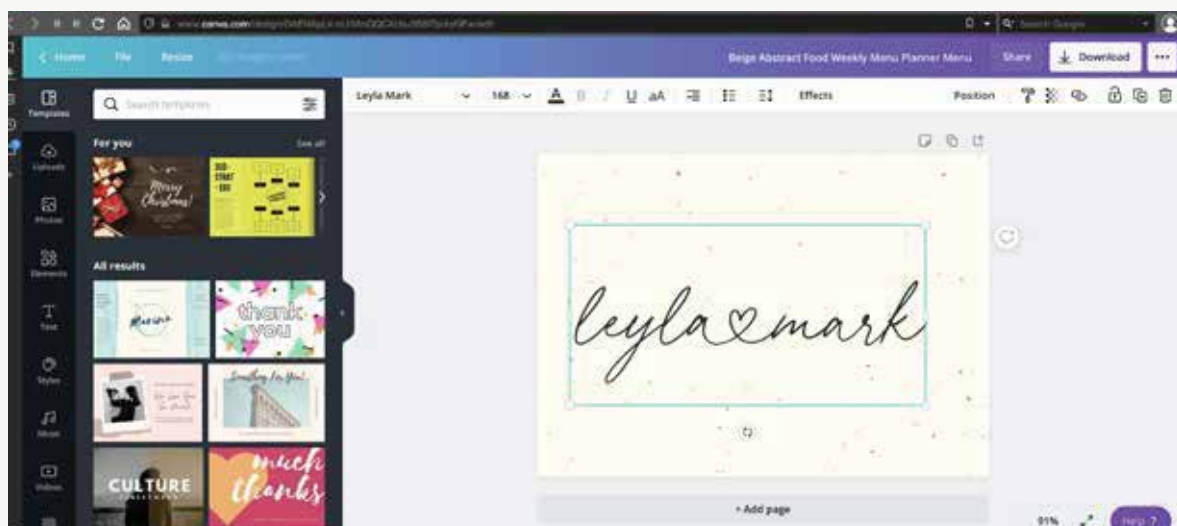

Canva and Cricut (similar to them apps) don't support OpenType features, so letter combos won't work. However, you still can use special characters, if you are using computer.

Next step is to open the Character Map on Windows, or Font Book on Mac.

Please, head to 3rd page to see how to find the needed glyphs(letters).

Mark the character and press Copy or Ctrl+C/command+C on your keyboard (to copy the glyph), and paste it into Canva or Design Space in the text box you already created.
